

RETURNING TO YOUR COUNTRY OF ORIGIN

NOTE: If you select this option it will likely have a negative affect your asylum case if you have not already been denied.

As of this date, migrant persons with Honduran, Salvadoran, and Guatemalan nationality who wish to return to their country of origin and/or residence voluntarily may apply for assistance to pay for a bus ticket to return, regardless of their migration status.

For more information about this process, contact the embassy or consulate representing your country within Mexico.

Alternatively, you can contact Grupos Beta to ask if they can help you.

It is important to remember that all migrants are going through the same struggle. Hard times can make us distrust one another, but all migrants are being abused by the same system, and the migrant community will be stronger if it is united and works together to overcome this challenge.

MIGRANT GUIDE

Because of the policies of the current U.S. government, migrants seeking asylum in the United States will likely have to wait in Mexico for at least 3 or 4 months before applying. This long stay can be very difficult, especially if you do not have a place to stay or money to support yourself for that amount of time. This guide exists to help migrants navigate the available resources Tijuana has to offer.
